PARIS – 17 MARCH 2022 – Phillips is pleased to announce HIRÆTH, a virtual selling exhibition in collaboration with PRIOR Art Space. Featuring 24 works and including artists such as Ziad Kaki, Giorgio Celin, Skyler Chen, and Mona Broschar, among others, this exhibition explores themes of selfhood, belonging and the concept of the home. HIRÆTH is now online and available to view from 17 March to 10 April.

Miety Heiden, Deputy Chairwoman and Head of Private Sales, said, “Phillips is honoured to collaborate with PRIOR Art Space, who work with emerging artists, seeking to enrich the contemporary art landscape and inspire the next generation of collectors by providing a platform for those artists. Their passion for producing thoughtful and carefully curated collections has drawn attention to the work of exceptional young artists and resulted in the present exhibition which we are delighted to host on Phillips.com.”

Oliver Elst, Superior Collection, and Laura del Arco, Del Arco Collection, PRIOR Art Space founders, said, “Our aim is to give visibility and an international stage to artists and so this exhibition in collaboration with Phillips is an amazing opportunity to work with a global platform to show who we consider to be the rising stars of our generation.”

The works featured in this exhibition are centred around the exhibition title HIRÆTH, which translates as a deep longing for the feeling of home and homecoming. The works chosen in this curation address questions of the self, belonging, status, the ability to recognise symbols unique to an individual's own experience, and the feeling of longing for a place that has never been home but that has shaped our life experience.

ABOUT PRIOR Art Space

The aim of PRIOR Art Space is to promote emerging artists and to inspire the next generation of art collectors, giving a voice to internationally and historically underrepresented artists and bringing into conversation the different visions and concepts that reflect relevant concerns in a contemporary landscape. PRIOR has locations in a number of cities and display curated exhibitions from the founders' private collections; the Del Arco Collection and the Cuperior Collection. These collections were opened up to the public to reach a broader audience and give artists a global stage. In the context and focus of the collections, PRIOR also collaborates with galleries, curators and artists, curating a different exhibition every month in which artists can exhibit their latest body of work in the space.
